hain and the waiving of indemnity are not yet publicly known. Despite the lack of information, many people are convinced that the Japanese government has made substantial concessions, and already are criticising and objecting. Unless the terms prove to be better than were anticipated, it is certain that the compact will prove unpopular and be biterly assailed by the press and by the Diet, which is expected to meet, in special session shortly.

The radical elements are asserting that Cabinet changes are inevitable. The mass of the public is not moved. There unquestionably is a feeling of great relief that hostilities have ended and that the men of the great army will return home, be disbanded and re-outer the walks of peace. This feeling, however, is without public manifestations. There have been no processions, no display of flags or other marks of popular joillifiestion. August 31—8 A. M.—A remarable absence of rejoleing is one of the most striking features attendant on the receipts of the news that a practical conclusion of peace has been reached. The kind of reception that awaits definite news will depend entirely on the nature of the terms. It is generally featured that extensive concessions have been made by Japan. It has been generally expected by the public that there would be a rupture at Portsmouth, in view of what was termed Itussia's obduracy in refusing the payment of indemnity.

Peace in Far East.

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, August 31.—The report that an Anglo-Japanese treaty was signed August 12th by Foreign Secretary Lausdowne and Minister Hayashi is confirmed. While secreey is maintained for the present regarding the exact terms, it may be said that the document is of farreaching importance. It affords mutual guarantees for the protection of British and Japanese interests, even if the two contracting powers are only threatened by a single hostile power, and assures the maintenance of the status quo in the Far East. The new treaty will be found to be a powerful factor in ensuring the peace of the world, at any rate so far as the East is concerned.

French View of Miss Roosevelt

French View of Miss Roosevelt,
One of the ablest writers in the Paris press has taken up his parable against Miss Alice Roosevelt, "Ridress-Presumptive of the United States Crown," he calls her. Her visits to Japan and the Philippines, accompanied by a minister of war, who is a mere "subaltern," fill him with indianation. At Manila Miss Roosevelt actually held a review, and this is what her father, the President, calls bringing up his daughter for her domestic dutles? Does Mr. Roosevelt, whose fondness for instructing his contemporaries is as great as the Kalser's, offer the 'royal progress of this dancerous young woman (why, at once place she was actually presented with a gold cup) as an example to the jounes filles of France? If so, he had batter understand that no French girl desires to go voyaging in quest of gold cups, and to, give herself the airs of a politician. #### KANEKO CHANGES FRONT; JAPANESE EXPECT TROUBLE

Believe That Peace Terms Will Lead to Attack On Consti tutional Party of Which Marquis Ito Is Head.

NEW YORK, August 31.—Baron Kan-quoted as saying that he was "surprised to learn of them." eko last evening disclaimed all connection with the negotiations which ter minated in the peace of Porthmouth, and added the statement that the terms of it were a surprise to him. His quick change of front will be a surprise to many who have been in touch with Japanese affairs, and indicate that some powerful pressure connected with inter-nal politics at home has been brought to bear upon him.

Baron Kaneko had the evening before

Baron Kaneko had the evening before spoken in the most eloquent manner of the treaty and had halled it a triumph for Nippon. The "hanzal" had died out of his views by morning, and when he read the newspapers and received many telegrams and messages he decided that he had attracted too much attention in connection with the negotiations at Pertsmouth.

Asked what his onlaion was to the terms of neace, the Baron took the question under advisement and later sent word by his secretary that he might be in the control of the secretary that he might be in the control of the secretary that he might be in the called the secretary that he might be in the called the called the secretary that he might be in the called the call

. What Secretary Says.

When asked how he would reconcile his differing attitudes in the matter, the Baron indicated that his secretary Mr. Saki might talk.
"Baron Kaneko," said the secretary, "has been a member of the Cabinet of the Emperor, and as a loyal subject could not criticise the result of the Portsmouth conference."

"The Earon would especially not criti cise a peace, the terms of which the Em-peror dictated. The close of the war, the Baron holds, is the result entirely of the Baron holds, is the result entirely of the maganimous spirit of the Emperor. The Japanese were not obliged to stop fighting for they had funds sufficient to last them! until next April: when the fiscal year comes to an end. But the Emperor, out of his wish that no more of his solders and saflors, be slain and in the interest of civilization and in his devotion to peace, was willing to make concessions.

Mr. French Declines Election-Finance Committee Recommends Wing for School.

Manchester Bureau, Times-Dispatch, No. 1102 Hull Street. A committee of the school board ap peared before the Finance Committee last night to ask for an appropriation sufficient to cover the expenses of securing two extra teachers and of two more

The plan of the committee, as represented by Mr. W. H. Owens, is that a new building be put up at Eleventh Street, such a building that may accom modato the present needs, and be added to in the future. Mr. Owens said in his address to the committee that the pres ent building had been overcrowded last year, and that for the sake of the health of the pupils and the danger of fire in the present crowded conditions, it had become an absolute necessity to arrange some means whereby the present con-gestion and danger incident to fire, if such should break out, could be refleved such should break out, could be refleved in the most feasible manner. Therefore the committee submitted a suggestion that an initial small building be erected at Eleventh Street, and that this form the basis of a new, enlarged school, when the conditions should demand and justify its extension. Last year the committee and been forced to rent an extra room on account of the overcrowding of the present building, and since the increased number of pupils demanded that a permanent enlargement of the present school facilities be made, it was deemed that facilities be made, it was deemed that the wisest course would be to erect a new building.

Therefore the committee presented their plans last night, through Mr. Owens, whereby a new building might be started to accommodate the present increase in the number of pupils, and this building to form the initial founding of an en-

Something About Elder Statesmen of Japan Who Declared Against War.

Dispatches from Tokio, publication of which immediately preceded the an-Louisement of the agreement reached at the Portsmouth peace conference, teld that the elder statesmen were considering the crisis in the negotiations. Into which scale their weight was thrown is made clear by the fast that a treaty between Russia and Japan is now in course of completion.

To these elder statesmen, then, belongs that portion of credit for the outcome which does not accrue to President Roosevelt. the Portsmouth peace conference, teld

The elder statesmen are often referred

The elder statesmen are often referred to as the real rulers of Japan. "Genro" is the name given them in the language of Nippon, and lis best English definition is "wisest of men, thoroughly tested." These men form a body which has no constitutional place in the Japanese scheme of government, but their decisions are virtually law to the Mikado and his people. marck of Japan, though marck of Japan, though hardly so rathless as those of the "Bloyl and Iron" Touton.

Inouye, though hardly to be classed as second to Ito in ability, is naturally the next to consider, because the latter and he have maintained a "David and Jonathan" friendship since their youth. Count Inouye has a reputation as a political scapesont. Whenever responsibility for a governmental blunder has been seeking a resting place, his shoulders have been ready and broad. He is a great advocate of and believer in peace, though, like all the elder statesmen, he is of the Samural, the class whose traditions and training bore such amazing fruit upon the battlefields of Manchuria and the red waters of the eastern seas.

Field Marshal Yamagata is proachly the most idolized man in Japanese public life. He is, more than any other man, the creator of that machine of fatalistic fighting men which swept the Russians from Korea and southern Manchuria, stormed the heights of Nanshun and breached the seemingly impregnable walls of Port Arthur, Yamagata presides at the meetings of the elder statesmen.
